

Libby Bernick
CEO, Impact Cubed

Libby Bernick is CEO of Impact Cubed, which provides analytics and investment solutions for building more sustainable portfolios that have greater impact. For over 25 years, Libby has worked to integrate sustainability and climate data into business decision-making to create more sustainable business models and greener products. Prior to joining Impact Cubed, she was the head of sustainability at Morningstar, leading its global ESG strategy and ESG integration across all its business lines. She previously held leadership roles at S&P Global, where she was the managing director of a global ESG business unit and at Trucost, where she managed the North American business. Libby is a regular contributor to international industry events, a frequent commentator in the media on sustainable finance, climate risk and ESG investing, and has served as an expert advisor to US, UK, and EC government agencies on greenwashing and green marketing claims. She sits on the Advisory Board of two early-stage growth companies in the ESG vertical, providing guidance on business strategy, product development and strategic partnerships.

Ms. Bernick earned her MAS degree in Civil (Environmental) Engineering and a BA in Chemistry and Biology from the University of Delaware.
