Julia Casals, CFA
Consultant, Bellspire Advisory

Julia advises a broad spectrum of investor types, from asset owners to asset managers (hedge and traditional) in adopting or refining the use of quantitative techniques in their investment and risk management process. She is also responsible for several of her client's strategic initiatives, including the development of capabilities related to ESG integration. Previously, she held senior investment manager roles, responsible for asset allocation, fund manager selection, risk analysis and portfolio performance evaluation. She started her career in London, as a junior analyst at AHL (Adam, Harding & Lueck-later the MAN Group), working directly for the Founders. After moving to the US, she held roles with several international investment banks (Nomura. CDC Securities (Caisse de Depots)) in the area of equity research before transitioning back to the buy-side, working as a consultant for institutional investors across five continents. She spends her time between the Washington, DC area and NYC and is Head of the Alternatives Education Committee in Washington, D.C. and a member of the CFA NY Society.
